COMPENDIUM OF CULTURAL POLICIES & TRENDS IN EUROPE

ASSEMBLY OF STAKEHOLDERS AND EXPERTS OF THE COUNCIL OF EUROPE / ERICARTS

30-31 MARCH 2017 | NICOSIA, CYPRUS

FILOXENIA CONFERENCE CENTRE, NICOSIA

Agenda

Chairmanship of Cyprus
Council of Europe
November 2016 - May 2017

Présidence de Chypre
Conseil de l'Europe
novembre 2016 - mai 2017

Background

Since 1998, the Compendium of Cultural Policies & Trends in Europe (www.culturalpolicies.net) has been run as a joint venture between the Council of Europe and the European Institute for Comparative Cultural Research (ERICarts), in collaboration with independent national experts and specialists from over 40 governments in Europe. Now fully established and recognised as the unique information and monitoring system in its domain, it is time for a transfer of responsibilities into more hands: Until the end of 2017, the partnership between the Council of Europe Secretariat and the ERICarts Institute in the management and editorial supervision of the Compendium will be replaced by a new, expanded governance structure (provisionally identified as the "Consortium").

During the last two decades, the Compendium has contributed substantially to both policy making and research or documentation projects in Europe and beyond, in addition to being regularly used as a source of information by tens of thousands of individuals in Europe and worldwide. This successful performance would not have been possible without its community of independent experts. These experts, many of them represented by the European Association of Cultural Researchers e.V. (ECURES), are involved in the development phase and some of them could, via their own organisations (e.g. arts councils; universities; research bodies; NGOs), eventually become partners in the new Consortium. While the future Compendium content, including derivative products and services, will profit from resources provided by governments, European bodies and other stakeholders, authors should continue to work professionally (i.e. at "arm's length" from Consortium bodies).

The Assembly of stakeholders and experts held in Nicosia under the Council of Europe Chairmanship of Cyprus is an important step towards the new Compendium "architecture": Its debates about potential partners and appropriate governance models for the Compendium should lead to clear preferences regarding a specific structure, the division of main responsibilities and future tasks of the new organisation. While the emerging new governance system of the Compendium should stay open to future accessions of stakeholders, those participating in Cyprus will have the chance to decisively influence the new co-operative structure as well as content priorities that will be in place after 2017. The results of the Cyprus conference will also inform the next meeting of the Culture Committee of the Council of Europe (CDCPP) in May as well as the next Compendium Experts Assembly in Prague (planned in October 2017).

In previous meetings, a multi-stakeholder governance structure of partners has been envisaged. All partners should be in a position to contribute specifically and meaningfully to the system (expertise, finances, staff, content, etc.). Last November, two Council of Europe member states, Finland and the Netherlands, already made commitments to participate in the Compendium relaunch via their national research and documentation bodies (CUPORE and Boekman Foundation) while others are considering joining once all details are on the table. The Council of Europe (CoE) and the ERICarts Institute or ECURES, representing the legacy and intellectual property of the Compendium, should be given a role in the Consortium following the end of their joint editorial responsibility at the end of 2017. In its new role, the CoE could continue with channelling voluntary contributions from Council of Europe member States earmarked for the Compendium.

In line with the tradition of previous Compendium Assemblies, there will also be two thematic sessions, organised in cooperation with the University of Cyprus:

1. From Cultural Diplomacy to Cultural Solidarity and
2. Cultural Participation and Inclusive Societies

(launch of the first thematic report on Culture and Democracy drawn up on the basis of information compiled by the Hertie School of Governance for the Council of Europe Indicator Framework on Culture and Democracy)
